this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of latey ears been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are: fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises officials in service of Chius and Japan, and to for students of a most instructive nature. Both Government officials and their families. the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size | Havana Trinidad, and Demorara, and to ports of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of in Mexico, Central and South America, by the space, schieving a clearness not previously ttained and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration Chalmers Vocabulary contains about 16.000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English: and Chinese Dictionary about 100.000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese charact Offices in Sealed Kavelopes, addressed to the ters. Again, despite all the grammars and Collector of Customs at San Francisco: other elementary works as yet published the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various applications and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many ge any other Dictionary hitherto pub-For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all INHE Undersigned having been appointed TEMBER, 1894.
